responsible consulting

Responsible Consulting

The commercial and performance demands facing all UK organisations are constantly increasing as competition at home and from abroad grows ever stronger. The constant change in financial and legal frameworks create yet further pressure on Directors and Senior Management teams.

One of the most rapidly changing legislative areas is Health and Safety, with a seemingly constant flow of significant changes being made every year. Responsible organisations take the Health and Safety of their staff very seriously, but most would confess to being at least a little confused by legislation let alone the impact it would have on their business.

With penalties for both Corporate entities and individual Directors and Managers increasing substantially, the need for high quality, responsible advice has never been greater.

4See Risk Management – The Difference is Clear

At 4See we understand the pressures of running an organisation and the need to balance the demands that these pressures place on your management team. We also intimately understand the law and how it affects you so that we can help you focus on the real issues that must be addressed to protect staff, the public, the company and its management.

By employing only the most highly qualified consultants, we are able to deliver the best possible service. This means providing advice and guidance at the highest level, as well as developing understandable solutions that meet your organisation's commercial objectives.

Our Clients Demand the Best

The needs of our clients define the structure of our services. This flexibility, when coupled with our highly experienced team of consultants, means that we can consistently exceed customer expectations and always deliver what we promise, on time – every time. We are proud of the strong, long-term partnerships we have with our clients, that have been built on the confidence and trust they have in us.

We're a bit different at 4See and we think you will notice.

Breaking the Mould

At 4See we believe that our future success relies upon our clients using us as little as possible! If you think this seems different from your experience with consultants to date – you would be right and this is just one of the differences you will notice with 4See.

We believe that our "Responsible Consulting" ethos develops trust with our clients so that they will want to work with us for many years. The value to us comes from long-term relationships built with clients who view us as partners.

By only selling you the services you want or need at any point in time we will always seek to maximise our value to you. How?

- We bring you solutions rather than just highlighting your problems.
- We give you the answers, we do not just reiterate the questions.
- We help your teams to develop their skills, rather than promoting reliance on us.
- We create commercially viable programmes not bureaucratic wish-lists.

So you can be certain that we will never recommend services that you do not really need.

From Top to Bottom and Inside Out

All our consultant teams are led by Chartered Safety and Health Practitioners, offering our clients total confidence in our abilities. This means that we can give strategic advice and guidance in the Board Room, as well as the practical advice you need at all levels throughout your organisation.
